COMMUNITY MEMO: END OF TERM EXAMS (Y7-Y10)

7TH JUNE 2024

Year 11 are coming to the end of their GCSE examinations and this means that we will be soon moving to our end of year formal exams. Every year group starting with Year 10, will be sitting their exams in the main Sports Hall. These exams are important for many reasons.

- To inform groupings.
- To inform exam paper levels.
- To capture the progress your child has made.

Families are to aid their child in preparing for these exams by referring to the Study Guide document which has been referred to throughout this year.

- Those in KS3 should refer to page 7 which includes links to our Knowledge Organisers which includes links to the curriculum in which the exams will be based around.
- Those in Year 10 should be discussing with their Subject Teachers on what topics they will be studying including past GCSE papers. They should also be referring to page 2 of the Study Guide to see which GCSE exam board they are following.

These arrangements are a vital part of their development and preparation for success and are carried out under strict exam conditions.

COMMUNITY MEMO: YEAR 10 MOCK EXAMS

13TH JUNE 2024

12th June 2024

Dear Parents and Carers,

As your child approaches the end of year 10, our attention turns to getting them fully prepared for the rigours of the final GCSE and BTEC exams which they will be sitting next year; as we all know time flies!

Your child has been preparing for their end of year assessments which will be taking place in exam conditions in the exam hall. These will mirror the procedures for the 'real' exams so that they understand what is expected of them next summer.

It is vital that all students take these exams seriously as this will be the last practice before their mocks in November which will inform the predicted grades that will go on your child's college applications.

Please see our study guide here which outlines the exam boards we use and a range of useful resources that support revision. You can start by encouraging your child to regularly review topics on GCSEPod see parent guide here.

COMMUNITY MEMO: FRANCE TRIP ATTENDEES

13TH JUNE 2024

France Trip Parents' Meeting
Tuesday 18th June 5-5.45pm

Dear Parents and Carers,

I am writing to inform you that there will be a parents' meeting for all students going on the France trip on Tuesday 18th June from 5pm to 5.45pm in school. Here we will provide details about the trip (times, itinerary etc.) and the opportunity to ask any questions you may have. Information booklets will also be distributed at this meeting. To help with your planning for the day of our departure, we anticipate meeting at school at approximately 10pm. The exact timing will be shared at the meeting.

Please also apply for the GHIC health insurance card, if you do not already have one. This card is free of charge and is essential in case of medical emergency while travelling in France.

- The link to apply is <https://overseas-healthcare.nhs.uk/get-healthcare-cover-travelling-abroad/start>

If you cannot attend the meeting, we will send a booklet home with your child. Just to also clarify that there may be times during the trip when students may not be under the direct supervision of a member of staff. While this will be kept to a minimum, this is, for example, the case on the ferry where students may buy refreshments or use the restrooms in small groups. Students who wish to stay with staff may do so and they will know where they can find members of staff nearby at all times. They will have a staff mobile phone number and they will be given instructions about staying in groups and that they MUST NOT walk around by themselves or engage with members of the public. If you would like any further information or have any other questions, please do not hesitate to contact me in school.

Yours faithfully,

Mrs R Fox

THIS WEEK'S SEMINAR

The big idea: A world with no national borders

Global migration: Nearly 10,500 people have crossed the English Channel so far in 2024.

THIS WEEK'S SEMINAR

Is it a good idea? Immigration is one of the issues most hotly debated by politicians at election time. Some believe the answer is to let people come and go as they please.

At last the map was finished. Called Wild World, it had taken Anton Thomas three years to draw — approximately 2,602 hours of work¹ — and was a wonderful sight. It included pictures of 1,642 animals, all placed on parts of the planet to which they were native. There was something else special about it too: it contained no human-drawn borders.

Thomas says that it represents an “idealistic planet”. A growing number of people seem to share his idealism.

Many of the elections being held around the world this year have immigration high on the agenda. Britain's prime minister Rishi Sunak has repeated his determination to stop the small boats carrying illegal migrants across the Channel, and to deport unwelcome newcomers to Rwanda.

Labour's Keir Starmer has promised to make border policing more efficient. Reform's Nigel Farage says he wants to reduce net migration to zero.

In the US, the number of people entering the country from Mexico is a headache for Joe Biden, one which Donald Trump is determined to exploit. The words quoted on the Statue of Liberty — “Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses yearning to breathe free” — ring hollow.

There are those, however, who believe that restricting immigration is both immoral and economically damaging. Some insist that national borders should be abolished altogether.

THIS WEEK'S SEMINAR

The economist Alex Tabarrok argues in The Atlantic that freedom of movement is a basic human right. Most people living in a rich country are there by an accident of birth: that does not make them more entitled to enjoy its benefits than those born elsewhere. Borders simply reinforce injustice.

He adds that immigrants bring new skills and stimulate an economy. According to the Centre for Global Development, abolishing borders would double world GDP.²

In their book Against Borders: The Case for Abolition, Gracie Mae Bradley and Luke de Noronha agree. They want all the money spent on policing borders diverted to help the world's poor.

Michael Sandel raises some difficult questions in his podcast The Global Philosopher. Politicians like to distinguish between asylum seekers and economic migrants — but is there a moral difference between those dying from bombs and those dying from poverty?

Border controls are sometimes justified on the grounds that countries work best when there is a shared sense of identity based on history, culture and religion. But, Sandel asks, is that really the case? And why should British citizens in Dover feel closer to people in Middlesbrough, 260 miles away, than to refugees in Calais, just 26 miles across the water?

Moreover, since most people believe that it is wrong to stop someone leaving a country, “why is it not equally wrong to prevent that same person from arriving?”³

Significantly, many of the politicians promising to crack down on immigration are themselves of immigrant stock. Sunak's family came from India via Africa, while Biden has Irish ancestors and Farage and Trump have German ones.

THIS WEEK'S SEMINAR

Is it a good idea?

Arrival survival

Yes: It is incredibly unfair that some people have miserable lives just because they were born in a poor country rather than a rich one. Migrants bring drive and enterprise, and should be welcomed.

No: There would be chaos. According to Gallup, 15% of adults — over 750 million — would move to another country if they could. Of those, 158 million would head for the US and 34 million to the UK.

Or... Migration affects not only the places people move to, but the places they leave. It is hugely damaging to a country if it trains doctors and nurses only to see them move abroad for better pay.
