Fundamental British Values underpin what it is to be a citizen in a modern and diverse Great Britain valuing our community and celebrating diversity of the UK. These 5 values are:
Democracy, Rule of Law, Individual Liberty, Mutual Respect and Tolerance.

1. Democracy

- 'Rule by the people'
- Making decisions together (voting)
- The right to voice your opinion

2. Rule of Law

- Understand and obey the rules set by the government to develop order

5. Tolerance

- Respecting different faiths and cultures
- Understanding that we don't all share the same beliefs and values and not imposing ours on others

4. Mutual Respect

- To treat people politely and thoughtfully, to show we value them
- Seeing things from someone else's viewpoint

3. Individual Liberty

- The right to believe, act and express oneself freely
- The right to freedom of speech
- The right to vote

What is National Family Day?

National Family Day, also known as “Family Day: A Day to Eat Dinner with Your Children”, takes place on Monday, 28 September 2026. Observed on the fourth Monday of September each year, the day encourages parents and carers to share a meal with their children and to recognise the protective power of frequent family dinners.

National Family Day is an awareness day built around a simple idea: families who regularly eat together are stronger and healthier.

The day is aimed at parents, carers, and children of all ages, and it raises awareness of the link between everyday family routines and children’s long-term wellbeing. Rather than a single large public event, it functions as an annual reminder to prioritise time around the dinner table.

Schools, community groups, and charities use the date to share research and to encourage families to commit to more shared meals throughout the year.

Why National Family Day Matters

The day matters because the evidence behind it is strong.

Research published by CASA at Columbia University found that teenagers who eat dinner with their families five to seven times a week are far less likely to smoke, drink, or use drugs than those who share meals twice a week or less.

Among younger teens aged 12 and 13, those who rarely ate with their families were several times more likely to make wrong decisions.

The same research links regular family meals to better grades and lower rates of anxiety and depression.

National Family Day translates these findings into a practical, repeatable habit that any household can adopt, regardless of budget or schedule.

time with family is important!*

How to Get Involved in National Family Day

Taking part is straightforward, and small changes can make a lasting difference. Here are some ways to mark the day:

- Eat dinner together – The simplest and most meaningful act is to sit down for a shared meal with no screens and genuine conversation.
- Switch off devices – Agree that phones, tablets, and the television stay off during dinner so everyone can talk and listen.
- Cook as a family – Involve children in planning and preparing the meal, which builds skills and turns cooking into shared time.
- Ask open questions – Use prompts about the best and hardest parts of each person's day to spark real conversation around the table.
- Make a weekly pledge – Commit as a household to a set number of shared dinners each week, then keep it going beyond the day itself.
- Share the research – Post the statistics about family meals on social media to help other parents understand the benefits.
- Start a new tradition – Introduce a recurring ritual such as a Sunday roast, a themed dinner night, or taking turns to choose the menu.
- Reach out to extended family – Invite grandparents or relatives to join a meal, in person or by video call, to widen the sense of connection.

Noteworthy Facts About National Family Day

- The day was first observed in 2001 and has been marked every year since on the fourth Monday of September.
- CASA research found that teens who have frequent family dinners are roughly four times less likely to smoke than those who rarely eat with their families.
- The full name of the observance is “Family Day: A Day to Eat Dinner with Your Children”.
- The campaign was founded by Joseph A. Califano Jr., who served in the administrations of Presidents Lyndon Johnson and Jimmy Carter.
- Studies cited by the campaign link regular family meals not only to lower substance use but also to better academic performance and improved emotional wellbeing.
